Tie Breaker

Total Points Scored - Both Teams

Oklahoma vs. USC

A new year. UT gets the benefit of the screwy scoring system. They stayed the same in the polls and the computer ratings but because of the number of votes received they get the BCS bid. I love my Horns and I'm glad they get the big paycheck but the system is still messed up. We could end the season with four undefeated teams. That's ludicrous and I hope it happens. This should be the first round of the 16 team playoffs. If you used the BCS standings for seedings guess what would be happening. UT would be playing Michigan in a first round game – the winner to take on the Cal-Iowa winner. How about these other first round games – USC vs. Florida St. and OU vs. Tennessee and Auburn vs. Tennessee. That would be good football. Instead we get Memphis vs. Bowling Green. I wish someone would tell me who likes the current system. It's not the fans, the players or the coaches. I can't believe the college presidents could care less. They would just as well ban athletics. I just figure the worse it gets; the closer we get to a playoff. On to the contest.

Here is your chance to once again prove your football knowledge (or lack thereof). The rules are simple. Each bowl game is listed above along with the point spread. If no point spread is listed, then you only have to pick the winner. Go to the entry form at my website (see above) and pick the team you think will cover the spread. The spread indicates how much one team is supposed to beat another. For example, USC is favored by 2.5 points over OU. If you think USC will win by 3 points or more then pick USC. If you think USC will win by 2 or less points or not win at all then pick OU. The tiebreaker will be based on the combined score of the OU-USC game. If you think the score will be 37 to 27 then enter 64 (37 + 27).

Entry fee is $10 and the payoff will be 1st place - 60%, 2nd place - 30%, and 3rd place - 10%.

Entry must be submitted on my website by Tuesday, December 14 at 5:00 PM. Entry fees should be promptly sent to 14 Gemsbuck Rise, San Antonio, Texas 78258.
